Chords

Chords is a web application aimed to help people to collaborate virtually. It is the platform to communicate, teamwork and share. It will provide user features, such as schedule meetings, keep track of discussion, and share resources, to build a better teamwork environment.

How to use chords:

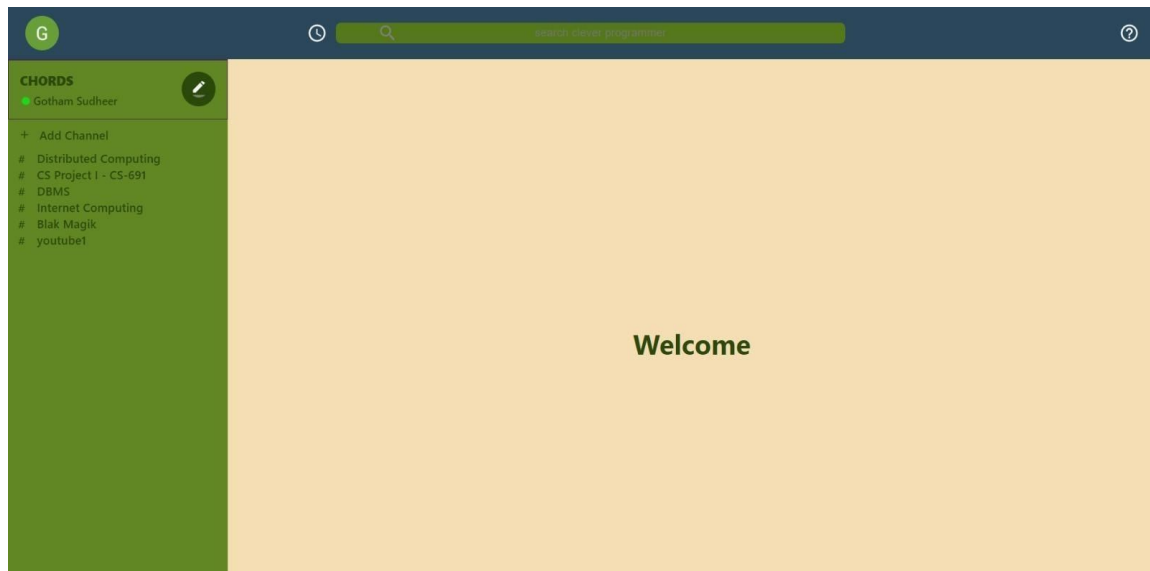

Step 1:

- Sign In/login to the chords website. To do so go to www.chords.com
- Below screenshot shows how login/registration page for chords will look like.
- So user can login/register using google account

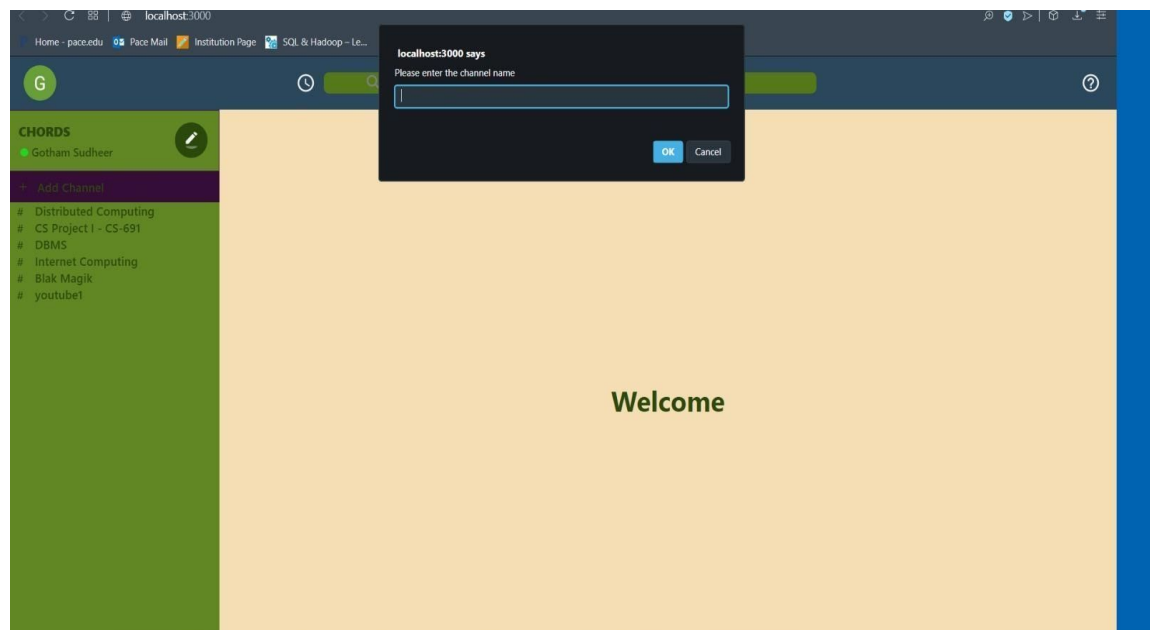

Step 2: Dashboard

- Once user logs in to chords the page will navigate to the dashboard as shown below
- Here on upper left hand side, the user can see their profile with their name displayed
- Also the user can see the channels they are part of below their profile name.

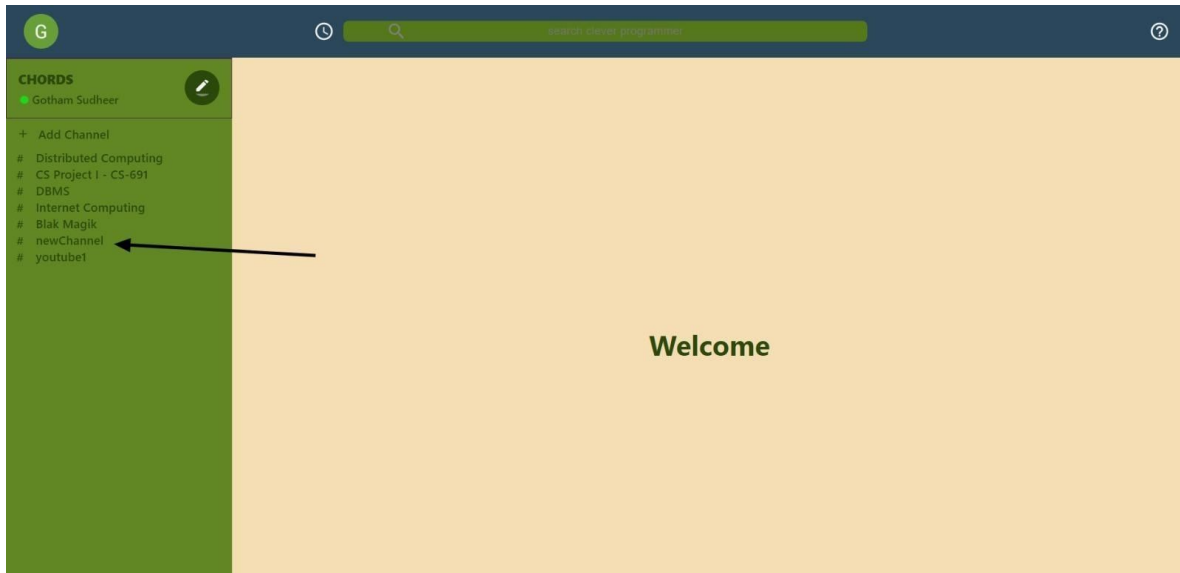

Step 3: Adding a new channel.

- In Chords there is an option called “add channel” where users can create new channels for discussion.
- Once the user clicks on ‘add channel’ a pop up window will appear where it will ask the user to give a name for the new channel (as shown in the below screenshot.)

- And once a user creates a new channel it will appear in the navigation bar on the left hand side as shown below

Step 4: Live Chats between the users

- Chords has a live chat feature which helps students, working professionals or teammates who are in different time zones to communicate virtually. An example is shown in the below screenshot where a demo channel '#dbms' is created and two different users are communicating.
